OVERVIEW

This workshop equips aviation professionals with the knowledge, tools, and practical experience needed to ensure airport safety and security at all levels. Participants will gain expertise in screening procedures, surveillance systems, threat assessment, and emergency coordination. Emphasis is placed on regulatory compliance, proactive threat detection, and the human factor in managing airport vulnerabilities. The training supports the development of a robust, multilayered security culture that protects both passengers and aviation infrastructure.

Audience

Designed for airport security officers, aviation safety managers, customs and immigration officials, airline security coordinators, transportation regulators, and professionals involved in the protection of airports and related infrastructure. It is especially relevant for those responsible for implementing international aviation security standards and managing passenger movement, screening, and crisis response.

Instructors

Led by aviation security experts, former airport police and counterterrorism officers, and ICAO-certified instructors with hands-on experience in managing airport security operations, risk audits, and emergency interventions. Instructors bring both strategic vision and operational depth to help participants align with global best practices.
