Alternative Disputes Resolution in Maritime conflicts

OVERVIEW

This workshop provides legal and maritime professionals with specialized knowledge and practical tools to resolve disputes arising in the maritime domain through ADR. It emphasizes the legal, procedural, and diplomatic dimensions of maritime conflict resolution, highlighting the advantages of flexibility, confidentiality, and enforceability that ADR mechanisms offer. Participants will learn how to navigate complex disputes related to shipping, marine resources, and maritime boundaries using non-confrontational, legally sound methods aligned with international maritime law and best practices.

Audience

Designed for maritime lawyers, diplomats, arbitrators, mediators, naval officers, port authorities, shipping company representatives, and international law specialists. It is particularly valuable for professionals engaged in transnational maritime operations, conflict prevention, or legal frameworks governing seas and oceans.

Instructors

Led by maritime law scholars, international arbitrators, and experienced mediators with deep expertise in UNCLOS-based disputes, commercial maritime arbitration, and public-private resolution of marine conflicts. Instructors combine academic rigor with real-world maritime conflict experience, offering a clear, applied approach to dispute resolution at sea.
