OVERVIEW

This workshop equips professionals in commercial companies with a foundational and functional understanding of contract law and its strategic role in business. Participants will learn to identify legally binding agreements, navigate key provisions, and manage risk through sound contractual practices. The course bridges legal knowledge and business application, allowing companies to operate with greater confidence, protect their interests, and minimize legal exposure in both local and cross-border contexts.

Audience

Designed for corporate executives, procurement managers, commercial officers, project directors, business development professionals, and anyone responsible for negotiating, reviewing, or executing commercial contracts. It is especially valuable for non-lawyers working closely with legal teams or managing external partnerships.

Instructors

Led by commercial lawyers, legal advisors, and corporate governance experts with deep experience in contract law, corporate transactions, and cross-sector commercial frameworks. Instructors translate complex legal language into actionable knowledge for business professionals operating in real-world contractual environments.
